

IP Safeguarding for your startup

Protect your valuable intellectual property against current and future threats of espionage and cyber attacks

Your startup is a target

Bringing your innovative vision to life is what gives you energy and motivation. Worrying about threats and risks probably does not.

Our mission at Dyami is to free you from worry about these threats and risks and let you focus on what you do best: innovate, develop and do business successfully and safely. This goes beyond just cyber security – more on that later – because the more innovative your company is, the more others want to get hold of your intellectual property (IP).

Espionage and IP/data-theft may sound like the subjects of a suspenseful movie, but these threats are real. And getting worse every day.

Dyami's background and connection to international intelligence agencies enable us to observe and analyze the current situation. Not only companies working on COVID-19 solutions are currently under heavy threat of espionage, almost all pharma and biotech companies are, or will be. Foreign competitors and regimes are actively out to get any IP that will give them a political and monetary advantage.

Fortunately, we are here to help: A tailor-made solution for maximum protection for your organization.

Our in-house analysts and experts have many years of international experience in the fields of intelligence, government, law enforcement, defence, travel industry, aviation and more.

Focus on opportunities and growth

As an ambitious organization, you are focused on seizing opportunities and growing your business. This does not really match the language of traditional security companies, who focus on the negative aspects of doing business.

At Dyami, we also focus on enabling you to do business successfully and safely, besides taking care of safeguarding you against those negative aspects. Our approach is at the strategic level, in the early stages of new plans and opportunities.

An example of strategic security: You'd like to do business in a country where the local safety situation is less than ideal. You decide not to go forward with your plans. Or you do go forward, and things go wrong. Either way, missed opportunity. By involving Dyami at an early stage, we analyze the situation and make a plan for you to do business successfully and safely.

Cyber security alone is not enough

Cyber security is all the rage these days. Hackers, ransomware, data leaks all dominate corporate news. There is a myriad of companies that will gladly help you protect you against cyber threats. Including Dyami.

But cyber security alone is not enough — at all. It's like taking care to secure your home Wi-Fi-network properly to prevent people from accessing your private data from the sidewalk in front of your house. And then leaving your front door wide open.

The same is true when it comes to corporate cyber security. This only covers a limited part of places and situations where others are able to access your IP.

The fact of the matter is that organizations that really want to get their hands on your IP and data are not lazy. They use other methods beside cyberattacks. That's why Dyami provides you with security across the entire IP access spectrum. With prevention, training, monitoring, procedures and 24/7 support.

Protection abroad

Even though meetings are more digital and remote than ever, travel will remain an essential part of doing business internationally. It's very important that you and your people can travel safely. Not just for your personal safety, but also with regards to keeping your IP and data safe.

With Dyami, you receive real-time alerts when threats emerge. Our reports are much more detailed than those publicly available or those of our competitors.

Our in-house analysts make custom threat assessments for you for any location in the world, giving you the tools to make good decisions quickly.

Your own security department

For the price less than that of a dedicated full-time security officer, you have the entire Dyami team at your disposal. Consider us your own security department!

After analyzing your assets, risks and vulnerabilities, we develop a plan with you for maximum protection with a tailor-made solution for you and your IP.

Surprisingly affordable

We know that every euro or dollar can be spent only once. That is why we offer several subscriptions with varying levels of service at surprisingly competitive rates. We are happy to tell you more about our subscriptions and rates.
